Newest public access to the Androscoggin opens

GUNNEL TO GUNNEL CANOES AND KAYAKS lined the shore of the Androscoggin River Friday near Bear River Rips, as scores of paddlers turned out for the dedication of the river's newest public access point. While waterborne recreation on the river has increased dramatically in popularity recently, so has fishing. And the rips are rapidly regaining their legendary reputation for trout, according to Mahoosuc Land Trust's Steve Wight, Friday's master of ceremonies. (Daniels photo)

Moran's Landing at Bear River Rips is dedicated

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Under sunny skies Friday, approximately 80 people paddled or hiked in for the official dedication of Moran's Landing at Bear River Rips.

The four-and-one-half-acre parcel has been purchased by the Mahoosuc Land Trust and will be used as a canoe access and fishing site. It is located on the Androscoggin River in Bethel, just north of where the Bear River enters the Androscoggin. (By road from Bethel, the site is across Route 2, just beyond the Newry Corner intersection, where Route 26 splits off and heads north.)

The purchase was underwritten by grants of $40,000 from the Land for Maine's Future Board, and $10,000 from the Maine Department of Conservation.

The land was purchased from Bob Laux and Cynthia Moran-Laux, and the new site will be named for Moran-Laux's father, George Moran.

The Department of Conservation also contributed a $20,000 Rivers and Trails grant toward the project.

The money will be used to construct a driveway and parking lot for 10 cars and two canoe trailers. That work is currently in the permitting stage, and organizers hope to have the improvements completed by the end of the current construction season.

Friday's ceremony was timed to coincide with the annual visit of Androscoggin River Source to the Sea Canoe trekkers.

Their numbers helped swell the crowd for the event to the largest ever seen at a Land Trust dedication, according to former president Ken Bohr.

The Land Trust is one of a number of local organizations and individuals, and state agencies that have worked cooperatively to develop a series of public access points to the Androscoggin River.

There are currently six such sites between the New Hampshire state line and Rumford.

And the Land Trust is working to establish a seventh in the largest remaining gap, between Hanover and Rumford.

In addition to the Land Trust, Land for Maine's Future board and Maine DOC, other organizations that contributed to the Moran's Landing project included the National Park Service, Appalachian Mountain Club, Maine Department of Transportation, and Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

Local individuals contributing time and effort to the project included Kirk Siegel, Marcel Polak, Eric Schwarz, Dick Stratton, Jim Mitchell, Landon Fake, John Laban and Bob Laux and Cynthia Moran-Laux.

Albany residents to meet on re-zoning proposal

In attempt to forestall any future Indian gaming plan

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

In the first week of January, 1999, after years of costly and emotionally draining effort, residents of Albany Township defeated a plan by the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe to build a high-stakes bingo facility in the township.

The tribe's plans called for a 400-seat bingo hall; but most residents were convinced that if the bingo hall was approved, a full-blown casino would be inevitable. Contract documents between the tribe and a New York financier — uncovered by Albany attorney Jeff Rosenblatt, using a federal Freedom of Information request — referred explicitly to such a prospect.

The Maine Supreme Court eventually ruled against the tribe's bingo hall plan, but on very narrow legal grounds. The land in question, which the tribe purchased from the late Fred Meader in 1994, had not been put into the Indian Territories by the Jan. 1, 1991 deadline established by the Maine Legislature.

Now a group of residents is attempting to develop a stronger regulatory bulwark against any further gambling initiative by the tribe. They want to adopt zoning.

How to control development?

On Sunday, July 21, residents and landowners will gather at 6:30 p.m. at the Albany Town Hall to decide if they want to ask the Land Use Regulation Commission (LURC) to develop zoning regulations for Albany Township.

But an official at LURC, the government agency that handles land-use for the Unorganized Territories, expressed skepticism about the proposal unless it includes approval from the affected landowners, including the Passamaquoddy Tribe.

Crawford Perry, clerk for the Albany Improvement Association, said, "They (the Passamaquoddy tribe) still hold property out there, and we don't know what they're going to develop there. This is so that the casino doesn't come back to haunt us again."

Perry said that residents from Albany attend the meetings of the Maine Tribal-State Commission each month. "At most of those meetings, they haven't talked about Albany at all."

Board declines to tighten policy on participation by private-school pupils

By ALISON ALOISIO

After an emotional plea from parents and the director of the Mahoosuc Mountains School, the SAD44 School Board Monday voted down a proposed policy that would have barred all private-school pupils from participating in district extracurricular activities.

The policy would have expanded an existing policy that excludes only private-school pupils who do not reside in district towns (for example, Albany or Mason townships).

The proposal to expand the current policy came out of concern that it be consistent for all private-school pupils, according to Supt. Kent Rosberg.

Over the past few years, pupils from the private MMS, located in Bethel, have been able to participate in extracurriculars at Telstar Middle School.

Directors who favored barring the private-school pupils have argued the district's first responsibility is to its own students. In some cases, they said, SAD44 students can be bumped from a competitive team by a more skilled private-school athlete.

And because pupils who leave SAD44 for a private school take about $4,500 in state per-pupil funding with them, the district also

Cell tower proposed in north corner of E. Bethel

By ALISON ALOISIO

A new proposal for a 130-foot telecommunications tower will come before the Bethel Planning Board July 24.

The tower, if approved, would be located on Ash Road in East Bethel, and be known as the Bethel East Wireless Telecommunications Facility. It would provide cellular telephone service for a radius of approximately five miles.

The site is less than 1,000 feet from the Rumford town line, according to a map provided by Spectrum Resources Towers, the applicant. Land would be leased from Clinton and Marsha Shaum of Atlanta, Ga.

A proposal made about a year ago to place a 190-foot tower off the Bailey Road drew strong opposition from nearby residents. They expressed concerns about its possible effect on their property values. The plan was dropped.

The East Bethel proposal calls for a 5,500-foot-square compound that would be surrounded by an eight-foot chain link fence. The tower

One hundred and one potholders. Four hours a potholder.

Four hundred and four work-hours later, Alice McInnis reached a goal she set for herself after last year's Christmas Fair at the West Bethel Union Church.

McInnis, a retired nurse from Bryant Pond, is an avid crafter. She makes lots of items, including potholders, to help raise money for her church. She started making the holders about five years ago. "It's like being an artist, only you use cloth instead of paint," she said.

She uses leftover material from other sewing projects, such as doll clothes. "I've got a lot of cloth I need to use up," she said.

She takes patterns from a book called "101 Patchwork Potholders." "I always wanted to complete 101, all at once, and have them to sell at the same time," she said.

McInnis made and sold several dozen holders for the Christmas Fair, but didn't reach the 101 mark. She then had about 7 months until the next church fair, scheduled for July 5.

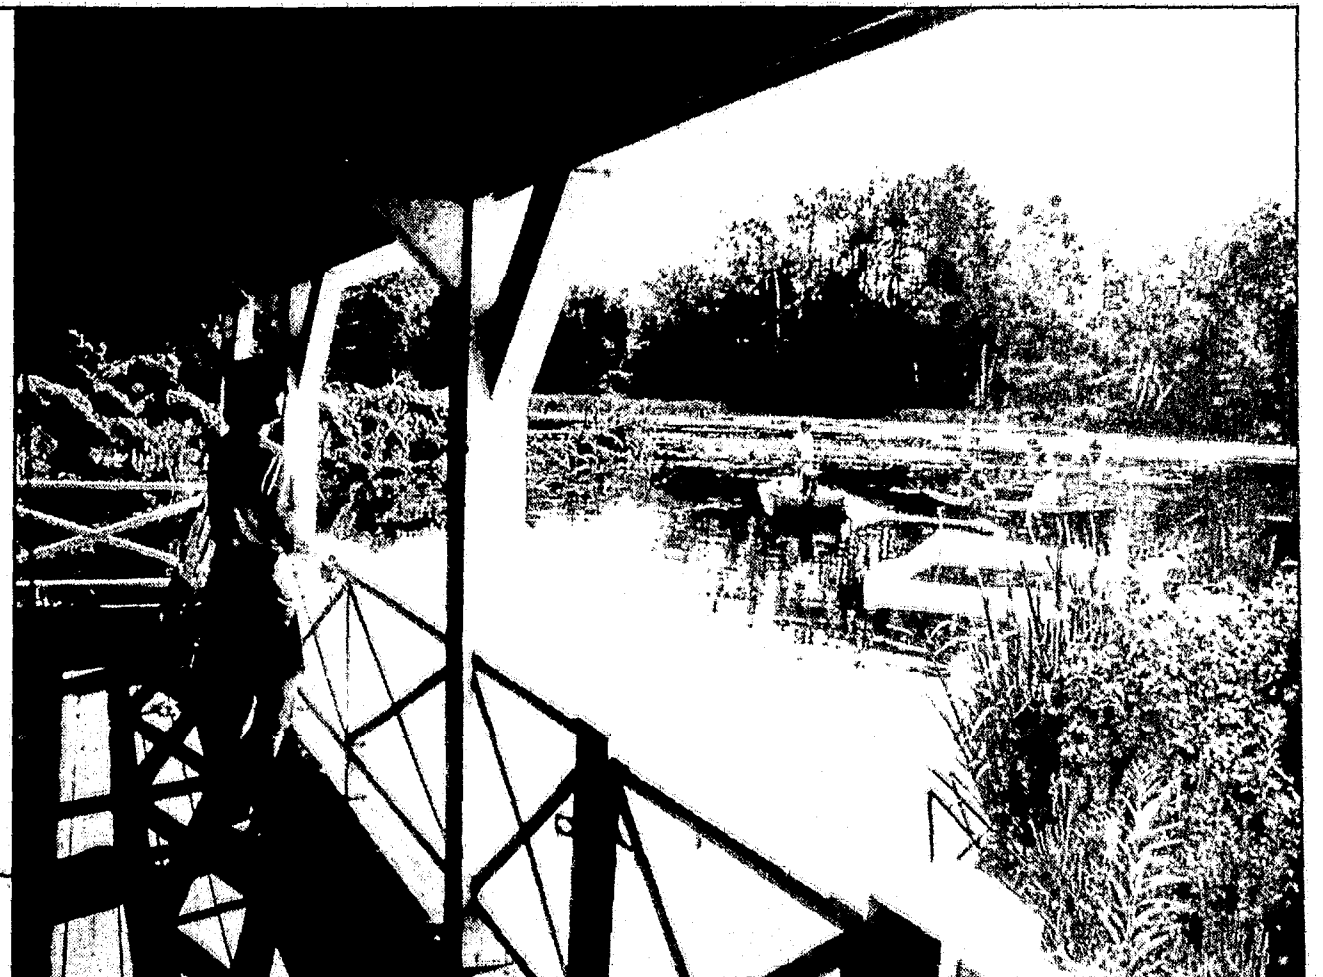

After the Christmas event, she told herself, "This time I'll make

A TOUGH SUMMER ON THE COVE

Sylvia Hauzenblas watches from her boathouse as volunteers remove variable leaf milfoil from the waters of the cove on Lake Christopher. The invasive plant was found there last month. An estimated 50 to 100 plants are growing in 19 small sites in the cove, and another site was found

Tuesday just outside the cove. Plastic containment pens have been set up around the areas of growth to try to prevent fragments of the plants from floating away and taking root elsewhere. Jim Chandler, in wet suit and snorkel, pulled the plants. The plant's discovery is the second blow of the season dealt to Hauzenblas by Mother Nature. In late June, she lost several large pine trees in a severe thunderstorm. One tree, which fell into the cove, is visible in the left background. (Photo by Alison Aloisio)

ASSESSMENT INEQUALITY

To the Editor:

I'd like to thank The Citizen and Rebecca Zicarelli for the comprehensive report regarding the tax abatement request Wilson's Rippis has pending before the Town's Board of Assessors.

The town's assessor and some board members are trying to complicate the matter in their attempt to justify their position. However, this is really a very simple issue of treating one subdivision the same as another.

The assessor has testified and the board has stated that if a subdivision advertises lots for sale and sells them for those prices, that the assessment for the remaining unsold lots will be 100 percent of the asking price. If this is the methodology used for all subdivisions in Bethel, as the town's assessor claims, then Wilson's Rippis is being treated the same as everyone else and there is no issue. But, that is not the case.

For example, the new Will View subdivision is selling lots for the advertised asking prices, but they are being assessed at 50 percent of the asking prices.

Wilson's Rippis is being treated differently than Will View and other properties, and that is just plain unfair.

CHIP TRUCK FOLLOW-UP

To the Editor:

In following up my letter to the editor, "Gassed by Chip Trucks," appearing in the July 4 issue of The Bethel Citizen, I received two phone calls from Roy Rike at DEP Air Compliance Bureau (287-4867), who represents the Western Maine area (on July 10).

He spoke at length of the forests where the chipping wood comes from, listened to my concerns, and even stated he would gladly have any suspect chip samples I could find tested by Mead/Rumford, or by state on a Gas Chromatograph.

Mr. Rike later called back further explaining chip production techniques and referred me to a Mr. Phil Tarr (369-2817) at Mead/Rumford, who I spoke with on July 11. His comments were: "Nothing is added to the chips. Chips are usually processed from fresh trees, solid length from one truck, and chipped and shot directly into the hopper of the delivery truck at the other end of the machine. Chips used at Mead/Rumford come from Farmington, West Paris, and Shelburne, N.H. The only remote possibility for an odor to occur would be if a load of chips sat for years; and would begin to degrade; but even so, it is doubtful that an ethanol, methanol, or formaldehyde-like fragrance would be created."

Mr. Tarr then stated: "The entire chip pile here at Rumford is completely turned once per year." And that "nothing in that pile is degrading, decaying, or has an odor." In closing Mr. Tarr commented that "sometimes the chip trucks also hire out to haul biomass through the towns to various landfill sites, and that perhaps that is some of what I've been smelling, but he did not know which carriers, where, or when."

B.F.D. CHICKEN BARBECUE

To the Editor:

The Bethel Fire Department will hold its annual Chicken Barbecue fundraiser at Mollycokett Day, July 20 — this Saturday. The barbecue will include chicken, macaroni and potato salad, rolls, and soda. Hamburgers and hot dogs are also available. This will be a lunch event at the firehouse, which will start serving following the Mollycokett Parade, until the meals are gone.

Last year, we served 300 supporters by one o'clock and this year we're ready for more. A computer slide show loop at the firehouse will show a review of some of this past year's fire calls.

This annual fundraiser has been used in previous years to help toward acquiring special equipment such as the Jaws of Life, the Rescue Boat, and the Thermal Imaging Camera. It is a fun and important event in the department's annual efforts to improve firefighting and rescue capacities. This year, the funds raised will replenish the firemen's Special Projects Fund. This provides the firemen with added training and safety equipment not covered by the town budget appropriations.

SUPPORT OUR LOCAL ALL STARS

To the Editor:

The Bethel Rockies and Bethel Braves minor league baseball teams would like to announce that they are sending eight players to the All Star Team for the Northern Division of the Andy Valley Baseball League for the eight- and nine-year-old age group. This group of boys are as follows: for the Rockies — Jeb Clarke, Danny Whitney, Corey Howard, Tyler Brown and Devin Vail; for the Braves — Austin Jodrey, A.J. Keith and T.J. O'Connor. The Northern Division team already had their first game and defeated the Southern Division team by a score of nine to three.

The team has been entered into a tournament in Brunswick this Friday and Saturday, and the winner of this tournament gets the opportunity to go to Cheshire, Conn., for a five-day tournament with other New England teams of that age group and league. A total of eight boys from Bethel as listed above; one from Greenwood, Ben Fields; two from West Paris, Kyle Farrar and Tyler Moore; and four from Norway/South Paris, Ryan Godin, Derek Morin, Erik Henderson, Drewen Wickson are part of the team. This tournament is a great opportunity for these boys, and the team is being coached by the coaches that volunteered for the Bethel Rockies team: head coach, Brad Clarke; assistant coaches, Scott Brown, Pat Howard and Rick Whitney.

This Northern All Star Team would appreciate any community support that they could receive for the proposed trip to Connecticut in the form of sponsorships or donations if at all possible. Please contact the head coach, Brad Clarke at 824-4692 or mail contributions to PO Box 52, Bethel ME 04217. If the team does not make the trip to Connecticut, any donations will be returned to the contributor at our earliest convenience. Thank you to Bethel, Greenwood, West Paris and South Paris for the anticipated support.

SHOULD HAVE BLAMED LANDOWNER

To the Editor:

I was appalled by last week's paper and the insensitivity to the death of Matt Collins, the young man who was killed while riding his ATV after hitting a gate that was clearly not marked for anyone to see at night.

The picture in the paper was taken of the shrine his friends and family made and left in Matt's memory. You should be ashamed of yourself for printing the article below it on the front page of your paper at this time. How would you feel if this young man was your son, brother or loved one?

I could see the paper doing an article on the ceremony that was held for Matt Collins; he had many loved ones and friends. And how this gate was very seldom closed and not clearly marked for anyone to see at night. My prayers and heart go out to his family and friends.

Several sources have told me that this gate was seldom closed for many years. I feel landowners should be responsible enough to make sure that if they put up a gate or chain to keep ATVs, snow machines or jeeps off their property that these gates should be clearly made with bright colors and reflective tape/materials to make them more visible at night.

The person who closed the gate has to live with the death of this young man, and the gate owner for not marking the gate clearly with some kind of reflective tape/material.

Most gates are closed or chains are put up out of anger and therefore not properly done with the mentality of the person putting them there, "There, that will teach them to go on my property." Not rationally thinking that this could result in the death of another human being.

I believe there should be laws requiring landowners to clearly mark any kind of barriers put up to keep persons off their property, so we don't have to see our friends/neighbors lose their loved ones.

What happens to the money that the towns and state charge for taxes and registration fees for ATV owners? If most trails are closed, what choices do the ATV riders have if they can't ride on trails maintained for off-road vehicles? The riders have to sometimes find their own ways hopefully not getting caught by game wardens. So, I guess as a society we force them to become these so-called "renegade riders." ATVs need to be included and do more education trainings or something, not just closing trails to them.

COMMENTS WERE UNNECESSARY

To the Editor:

Matt Collins' family and friends do not appreciate his accident and tragic demise being used as a mere sidebar to the ongoing saga of ATV use and abuse. This kind of sensationalism, while it may be the mainstay of and even expected in the larger media, should be considered insensitive and callous in the kind of close community we all enjoy. One could pursue their aspirations of journalistic glory and still show respect for a grieving family by broadening your mind and approaching stories from a more personal level. Bringing attention to beer bottles in the memorial photo or quoting comments such as "problems with juvenile ATVs could be cut in half by a little parenting" were unnecessary.

Instead of making assumptions, you should have spoken with Matt's friends or interviewed parents whose children do have ATVs. They would have told you a different story from the one you presented, which would have helped to heal the community rather than alienate it.

SHAME ON YOU

To the Editor:

Shame, shame, shame on you. How could you be so insensitive as to print an article about "Renegade ATV Riders" below a picture of a memorial to someone who lost their life on one?

We found the article on last week's front page to be in poor taste and downright disrespectful to the memory of our friend Matt, his grieving friends and especially his poor, bereaved family.

Couldn't you have waited a week before running the article separately?

Would you have done the same if it were your son? I think not.

Your journalistic endeavors cast our friend in a bad light. Not just to those of us who knew him but to the casual observer who didn't and merely bought the paper.

Sure he had a couple of run-ins with the police concerning his ATV riding on the paved road, but it was the only way to get to the nearest trail. Renegade ATV Rider — we think not.

This was a good looking, big hearted 20-year-old man with a million-dollar smile and his head screwed on straight.

He was carpentering for the summer and saving his money for college in the fall. The man had a plan.

We've spoken to many outraged people who didn't even know Matt.

We want to let everyone, whether they knew him or not, to know who Matt is.

If we wanted to read sensationalistic headline-grabbing articles, we'd buy The Globe, Enquirer, or better yet, The Sun Journal, which seems to get letters like these almost daily. Oops, I forgot. They own this paper, too, don't they?

We demand an apology. Shame on you. Larry Flynt considers himself a journalist, too.

BLAMEWORTHY ARTICLE

To the Editor:

Last week many of us in our local community were stunned twice. The first time by the sudden and tragic death of 20-year-old Matt Collins and the second time when this paper chose that event to cover a story about ATVs.

This is a small community. My 20-year-old son has been working side by side with Matt building a house for months, Matt's mother took a class with me, my women friends work with Matt's mother, their sons are friends with Matt's brother, a friend of mine was Matt's boss. When a tragedy this enormous hits in a community like this, it affects all of us. But unless you have lost a loved one, maybe you can't imagine the size of this level of pain and suffering. To lose a child is the most extreme and painful loss that any human can endure.

I am deeply saddened that the article about the problems with ATVs was coupled with Matt's fatal accident. I am stunned that The Citizen didn't recognize the insensitivity of placing such a blameworthy article right under the photograph of where Matt was killed.

INSENSITIVE DECISION

To the Editor:

I am not pleased with the decision to write and print the ATV article along with the photo and headline of the tragic death of Matt Collins.

I agree that there are some serious concerns with ATV riders that need to be addressed, but I think it was very insensitive to all that loved him to print it on the same edition as his death. I think The Citizen should publicly apologize for doing this.

UNTASTEFUL

To the Editor:

I, as a parent and wife of three ATV owners, would like to comment on the untastefulness of your article on the front page of the July 11 issue of The Citizen.

Do you not think that the family and friends of Matt Collins have not had enough to deal with since his tragic accident?

For you to put such an article as the one about "Renegade ATV Riders" right under a memorial picture was not only untasteful it was totally unnecessary.

Do you have children? Do you have an ATV? Do you have any standards? Do you have any morals?

These questions I must ask, for I along with many other parents cannot imagine anyone with children placing such an article where your paper chose to do so.

Is this called journalism?

SHOULD HAVE SHELVED ARTICLE

To the Editor:

I found your decision to publish an article about renegade ATV riders beneath the account of the death of Matthew Collins from an ATV accident to be insensitive to the grief of his family and friends.

Common decency should have compelled you to shelve the "renegade" article for a future edition.

Maryvonne Wheeler

NOT A 'RENEGADER'

To the Editor:

After reading the article, "Snowmobile, jeep trails threatened by "renegade" ATV riders," in the July 11 issue of The Bethel Citizen, I was completely appalled. I feel that it was very inappropriate to make an example of a man that had just been involved in a tragic accident. Many of Matt's friends and family had surrounded the gate with flowers, poems and candles (as seen on the front page of the July 11 issue) to show their kindness and love for Matt. Below the picture there was a disrespectful passage on the supposed "renegaders" ATV riders of Bethel.

People had just lost a son, a brother, and a dear friend, and the article is basically about which citizens of Bethel have complained about ATV and dirt bike riders and ones that contain postings on their land so that ATV riders are not allowed. For those who knew Matt Collins knew that he was not in fact a "renegade." One thing that he loved in life was his ATV, and with no exaggeration he would ride it almost each and every day.

Even though Mr. Norman Lewis states that there was not an official ATV trail behind Gilbert's Manufacturing Mill, there was in fact a road/trail that people would ride four-wheelers, bike and walk regularly. Matt and many of his wheeler friends would ride behind the mill frequently; in fact, Matt had gone behind Gilbert's on his four-wheeler earlier that day before his accident. The article made it seem that all ATV riders are completely out of control and are purposely destroying property.

I also feel that it was way out of line for Mr. Lewis to state that "the problems with juvenile ATVs could be cut in half by a little parenting and that kids don't have $6,000 to buy an ATV." That may be true that young kids do not have the money to buy an ATV, but it is also true that accidents can happen and there is no need to be blaming anyone, especially the parents.

What happened on Saturday, July 6, was a tremendous misfortune, and I feel that it is extremely unprofessional and improper to make an example of a man in the local paper for the entire public to read.

Matthew T. Collins, a.k.a. "Squid," you will be greatly missed. We love you.

Principal search process underway

BETHEL—A consultant hired by SAD44 to aid in the search for a new principal for Telstar high/middle schools told directors by memo Monday that 15 potential candidates have expressed interest in the position. Dick Tyler also said he has contacted other individuals to inform them of the opening. David Murphy, Ed.D., who served as TMS/TMS principal last year, has accepted the job of SAD44 superintendent, replacing departing Supt. Kent Rosberg. Directors hope to interview candidates at the end of this month. Whether the principal will be hired on a permanent or interim basis will depend on the quality of the candidates, Rosberg said Wednesday. But, given the current pool of potential candidates, "It appears an interim will not be necessary," he said.

SAD44 personnel changes

BETHEL—The SAD44 Board of Directors Monday accepted the resignations of the following staff members: Dianne Morton, Telstar Middle School grade six teacher; Jennifer Clark, TMS special education; Mary Lightbody, TMS art; and Gretchen Fall, CPS guidance. Karen Rosenberg was transferred from a TMS education technician position to district CNA/health aide. The board also elected its officers for the coming year. Kelly Scotti was re-elected chairman, while Becky Cummings was elected vice chair and Lainey Cross vice chair pro tempore.

Sunday River employees put out fire

NEWRY—Sunday River Ski Resort's mountain operations crew Tuesday extinguished a small forest fire believed to have been started by lightning, according to resort officials. A worker constructing a new patrol hut on top of Jordan Bowl spotted smoke on Aurora Peak, at the top of the Northern Lights ski trail. The fire likely began when lightning hit a tree during a storm Monday afternoon, smoldered through the night and was then fueled by high winds Wednesday morning, said Peter Koch, director of risk management at Sunday River. Crew members worked to control the small blaze, measuring approximately 20 by 10 feet, with portable water tanks, hand tools and finally the snowmaking system. The Warden Service was notified. The crew included Marvin Collins, vice-president of operations and a member of the Newry and Bethel fire departments, Nathan Brown, Scotty Hamilton, Rich Jodrey, Josh Lempert, Tim Bruce, Tim LeCours, Tom Rock, Glen Newell, Ernie Waltham, Matt Montgomery and Matt Williams.

Patte Brook dam repairs scheduled

ALBANY—The White Mountain National Forest has teamed up with Ducks Unlimited to repair the dam and improve aquatic habitat at Patte Marsh, just north of Crocker Pond. The marsh will be drained and repairs started in mid-August. The project has been in line for funding for several years. With help from a grant from Ducks Unlimited, work will begin to fix the dam and improve the habitat conditions for waterfowl and other wetland wildlife. Draining the marsh will allow for dam repairs, and will expose the marsh floor to sunlight and oxygen, which are needed to rejuvenate aquatic vegetation that provides food and shelter for many wildlife species. Stream flow through Patte Brook will be maintained while dam repairs are made, and construction techniques will be used to minimize sediment entering the brook. Enough water will be maintained in the pond to protect fish populations. The dam was first constructed in the 1800s to store water for a mill once located on Patte Brook. Last repaired in the 1960s, the dam has been leaking for several years. The Forest Service intends to maintain Patte Marsh into the future as wetlands habitat for wildlife. The area will remain open for undeveloped recreational activities. For more information call the U.S. Forest Service at (603) 466-2713 ext. 231.

Counterfeit bills found

RUMFORD—Two counterfeit bills were passed in Rumford businesses last week. A $5 bill was reported at Aubuchon Hardware Friday, while a bogus $20 bill was reported at the Hannaford's grocery store Wednesday. Last month, the Franklin Savings Bank turned a counterfeit $10 bill over to Rumford police. All three bills were then turned over to the U.S. Secret Service office in Portland, which is investigating. Information on how to detect counterfeit currency can be found on the Secret Service Web site at www.secretservice.gov/money_detect.shtml.

Marina plan prompts protest, threats

STONEHAM—About 70 people at a Board of Appeals hearing last week expressed their disapproval with a marina proposal for Great Brook, which runs into Kezar Lake. The request for a 24-slip marina, proposed by Building Solutions of Oxford, was approved by the Planning Board May 29. The marina would serve people staying at the Evergreen Valley Resort in Lovell. The Kezar Lake Watershed Association filed an appeal because it claimed the board did not give public notice of the hearing, did not apply the standards in the Shoreland Zoning Ordinance and that the plan did not meet standards contained in the ordinance. An attorney for the association said a marina would contribute to water pollution, erosion and sedimentation and adversely affect fisheries and wildlife habitat. After listening to comments during the meeting, the Appeals Board decided to call another meeting for 7 p.m. July 29 at the firehouse to let all parties better prepare for the appeal. After last week's meeting, several telephone threats were made against Joseph Casalino, the president of Building Solutions, according to State Police. Vandalism was also reported at a construction site in the marina area. Police were investigating.

Special ed students sought

BETHEL—SAD44 is seeking to identify and evaluate any students between the ages of three and 20 who reside in its geographic jurisdiction, who are in need of special education and supportive assistance. Schools are required to provide services to students with disabilities whose parent(s) live in the school unit, and to all adult students living in the unit. Students attending both public and private schools on a tuition or contract basis, at public expense, are included. Anyone knowing of students eligible for services may contact Ann Holt, director of special services, at the Special Services Office, 19 Crescent Lane, Bethel 04217.

Bed race needs racers

BETHEL—Bethel Rescue and Tri-Town Rescue are hosting the annual Mollycokett Day bed race classic Saturday, July 20, at 1 p.m. on Broad Street. They are looking for other teams to compete. Teams need four "medical personnel" to "treat" various injuries and push the hospital bed. Teams also need one willing patient. Usually the smaller person, the less weight to push the bed. Teams may show up about 12:45 p.m. or call Bethel Rescue (824-2815) or Tri-Town Rescue (674-2400) for more details.

Outhouses disappearing

PORTLAND—The number of Maine year-round homes without indoor plumbing is declining quickly, and that means a longtime part of the rural landscape — the outhouse — is quickly vanishing. "There will come a time," said Nancy Rudolph, who still uses her outhouse on Bustins Island off Freeport, "When no living people will have any memory of any outhouse at all." New U.S. Census figures show the number of year-round homes without complete plumbing fixtures declined by 40 percent between 1990 and 2000. "The census says 4,468 Maine housing units — less than 1 percent of the total — lacked complete fixtures in 2000."

From the Bethel Police Log:

Monday, July 8

At 6 p.m. police received a report of a pig at large on Vernon Street. The animal was caught and returned to its pen.

Thursday, July 11

At 11:20 p.m. police stopped a subject on Railroad Street for speeding. A license check showed a warrant for the subject, David A. Dutton, 49, of Brunswick. He was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail.

Friday, July 12

At 5:10 p.m. police received a report of a disturbance on Mason Street. Police arrested Cindy Boutillier for domestic assault. A second subject was ordered to leave the residence.

Saturday, July 13

At 8:04 p.m. police arrested Brenda L. Taylor, 32, of Greenwood on a domestic assault charge on Walkers' Mills Road.

Sunday, July 14

At 1:05 a.m. police stopped a vehicle on Main Street for erratic operation. The driver said she was learning how to drive a standard shift vehicle, but was unable to provide a license. A check showed she did not have one. A cup of beer was also located on the drivers' side floorboard. Misty Lee Donalis, 18, of New York, N.Y. was given summonses for operating without a license and operating with a passenger possessing an open container. She reportedly insisted she had a license and the officer said if she could prove it, that charge would be dismissed.

At 8:12 a.m. police assisted the Fire Department with a car fire in front of a West Bethel business on Route 2.

would be a lattice construction and carry at least three wireless-carrier arrays. It is not expected to be lighted, according to the application, "unless required by the FAA."

Abutters to the proposed site have been notified of the plan, according to Robin Mills, Bethel planning assistant.

loses money, board members said. But before the vote Monday, MMS director Marie Hickey argued the benefits of the relationship go both ways.

"I've tried to be very collaborative, and show my gratitude for the ability to participate," she said, her voice cracking at times. She has volunteered with the district as a snowboarding coach.

But, she said, she would consider discontinuing her school program if the SAD44 resources were no longer available. Hickey said she did not want to continue "to fight what seems to be a divisive and somewhat mean-spirited battle."

"It's important for the kids to be part of the community. I ask people to continue staying with the old policy," she said.

A parent who spoke in favor of continuing the arrangement said she did not see the TMS/MMS relationship as competitive or adversarial. She said some pupils' needs can be better served in the private school's setting.

She said she was pleased with her dealings with the SAD44 Special Education Department. But, she said, some children with attention deficit disorder, like hers, "need a different kind of environment, especially at the middle school level. We have a gift, and a choice. We can do things other school districts can't, because we're small."

She said her child would be very disappointed to have to give up sports and band participation.

Two other parents expressed similar sentiments.

In addition, Bethel director Cheri Thurston sent a memo to fellow-directors, saying that with the availability of MMS, "special needs can be addressed without adding to the SAD44 budget by adding designated personnel," thus freeing up district resources for other purposes.

The proposed policy change would also have barred the students from curricular (class) programs, but Rosberg said that would not have affected any current students.

After some discussion by directors, the change was easily voted down.

Rosberg said later he did not see the issue coming back to the board anytime soon.

(In reply to the letters on page 2 objecting to last week's coverage of ATV problems and the death of local young man in an ATV accident:

After some discussion as The Citizen was being pasted up last week, the difficult decision was made to combine the photo of the memorial at the gate where Matthew Collins died and the front-page story on problems caused by ATV misuse — a story that focused on landowner issues but also made explicit mention to the growing number of ATV injuries and fatalities.

This was a story on which we had been working since the middle of the previous week. It was slated to be our lead feature story last week, and the sad event of the weekend, in our view, only increased the importance of getting out the message that ATVs need to be driven responsibly.

As for the photo itself, the overriding reason for publishing it — aside from its news value — was that it provided stark evidence careless actions can have unintended, even tragic, consequences.

If the publication of the photo drives that message home for one young person, if one family can be spared the pain that families such as Matthew Collins' experience as a result of such accidents — and they are increasing at a frightening rate — then the decision to publish will have been a good one.

We will, of course, never know what effect, if any, the photo will have on future events. Perhaps we delude ourselves to hope that it will do anything more than cause unquestionable pain in the here and now. But perhaps not.

In any case, the decisions, right or wrong, to publish the story and photo lie solely with the editor, Michael Daniels.

He is also responsible for the choice of headlines, and in the case of the ATV story the headline, while perfectly appropriate prior to the accident, was in poor taste in its published context and should have been rewritten. We apologize for not picking up on this and changing the headline.

And for the record: Reporters who write the stories we publish do not make decisions about when and how they are published, though their input is always valued. Had the calls in this case been the reporter's to make, they no doubt would have been different. —MRD)

Albany

But, Perry said, the tribes are trying to extend the deadlines for putting land into Indian Territory. Should the tribes be successful, the potential of a casino in Albany may return.

In a press release for the meeting, members of the Albany Improvement Association wrote: "Recent attempts to locate a casino in Albany Township have shown local residents that there is need to provide LURC with the basis for legally denying such unwanted development in Albany."

"The reason we're doing this is not to tell landowners what they can and can't do with their land," said Sally Sawyer, treasurer of the association, "but to set limits on large development proposals and have a voice in the approval procedure."

The press release expresses a similar idea, "The residents of Albany Township are not against development of small businesses that are consistent with the rural setting in terms of size, appearance, noise, and the amount of transient traffic generated by the business."

Organizing not an option
According to Sawyer, Albany residents investigated organizing into a plantation and withdrawing from the Unorganized Territories.

This type of political organization, just below that of a town, would give Albany residents the right to adopt local ordinances and have more local control, while still having the state conduct much of their business.

But it also places the burden of education on the tax base of Albany. Right now, the cost of tuition and busing for children in Albany is spread across the entire unorganized territories.

"The cost to each landowner scared everyone away," Sawyer said. "Taking over busing and tuition was a huge amount to each family."

But the idea of developing more local control remains. Residents found an existing LURC model for local control in the Rangeley Lakes area. And it's a model that wouldn't cost the landowners a penny.

"LURC will help, at no cost to the people of Albany," Sawyer said, "but still give us some say about what happens in our community."

No legal standing

The Rangeley Lakes region worked with LURC to adopt zoning, called a Rural Settlement Plan.

Through a series of meetings, landowners developed and adopted zones of development that were appropriate for areas throughout the region.

The Rangeley Lakes Settlement Plan includes a number of zoning options that Albany residents are interested in considering. It allows for division of property but not subdivision; allows forestry without a LURC permit; limits floor area for commercial developments; allows home businesses, general stores, post offices, schools, small lodging facilities, and small restaurants; and provides standards for vegetation buffers, lighting, parking, building layout, and setbacks.

LURC commissioners made zoning a priority for areas experiencing a lot of development, including the Rangeley area, Moosehead Lake, Carrabassett Valley, and areas near Baxter State Park. According to Fred Todd, manager of Planning and Administration for LURC, Albany was not included in the list of areas for management zones.

"Albany does not have standing to propose rezoning," Todd said. "Only the landowners have standing."

He said that the residents' attempts to develop some sort of zoning would be successful, but that decision would be up to the LURC commissioners.

"Assuming Albany residents approve this proposal," Todd said, "then they would need to put it on the agenda for a commission meeting. The commissioners would tell us how they want us to proceed. Ultimately, it's up to the commission to approve a particular zone."

If the LURC commissioners did approve Albany's request to develop zoning, it would begin a long and time-consuming process.

Todd said, "Even if the commissioners make this a priority, it will be some time before we have the staff time to flush out the details. Assuming the commission wants to pursue it, it will be a year before we have significant resources for it."

There are supposed to be four planners on the LURC staff, but currently there are only two. Because of the state's fiscal crisis, there is a hiring freeze, so the planners will not be replaced in the near future.

Albany residents can begin meeting on their own, Todd said. "We can give them direction on things and they can do this on their own to keep it moving, and keep us in the loop. But we won't have a representative at every meeting. They would be well served to either hire a planner or contract with the local planning commission."

Get the tribe on board?

The details of any zoning plan Albany residents propose would have to be in keeping with LURC's existing rules, Todd said. Basing their plan on existing development zones was a good way to begin.

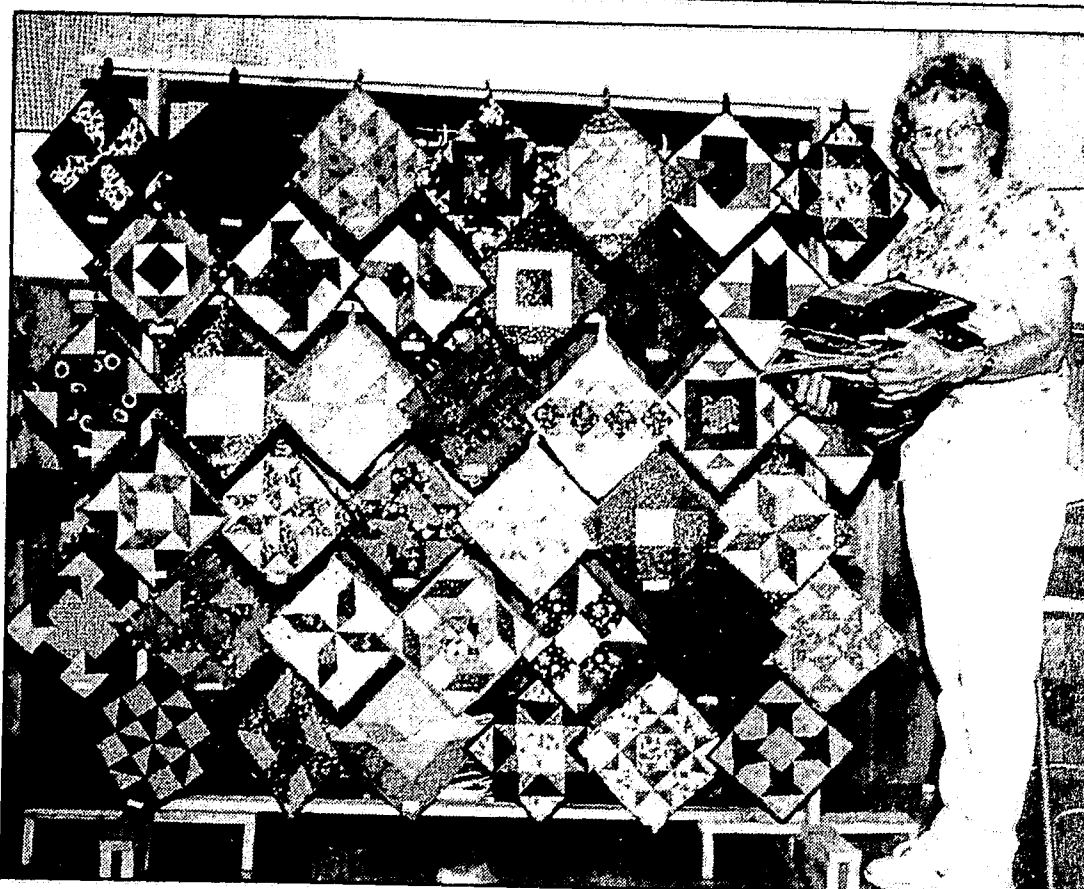

But he cautioned that a proposal for zoning put before the commission would have to be specific. It would need to indicate areas where such zoning is appropriate, and could not simply include the entire township.

Because Albany has no legal standing, Todd said that the support of landowners in Albany, including the Passamaquoddy Tribe, would be crucial.

"They ought to get the Passamaquoddy involved," Todd said. "If the landowner isn't willing, we may not be willing."

Potholders

sure I get them done."

"I can make one in an evening, in about four hours," McInnis said. And this was in addition to all the other craftwork she does.

So through the winter and spring McInnis stitched away at patterns titled, "Yankee Puzzle," "Nelson's Victory," "Pinwheel Askew," and "Autumn Maze."

It takes time to pick out colors for the holders and lay them out in the pattern. She machine quilts them, and hand-sews the back.

She often stays up until 1 a.m. working. It's the nurse in her, she said. The 3-to-11 shift she worked had ingrained its own pattern on her, and she continues to be a night owl 10 years after her retirement.

"I hate to waste time sleeping," she said.

While she sews potholders, said McInnis, "I listen to baseball games on the radio." She particularly appreciates late-night Red Sox games from the West Coast to keep her company.

Come July 5, McInnis was ready. One hundred and one potholders hung on a rack for sale, all at the same time. About 30 of them sold, at $3 each.

Having reached her goal, McInnis plans to carry over the remaining potholders and make new ones to replace those sold, once again giving her 101 to sell, for the next Christmas Fair.

They'll still be $3 each.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

I'm beginning to think that gasoline must be harder to produce in the summertime. Maybe the heat creates some kind of evaporation problem. How else can one explain the sudden increase in the price at the gas pumps?

During the winter the price per gallon did go up and down a bit, but most of the time it was pretty stable. I figured that as long as fuel oil was in demand the consumers would at least get a bit of a break at the gas stations. The breaks were minimal and now the price is going up again.

Hey, you don't suppose that the higher rates have nothing to do with gasoline production, but are directly related to the increased number of tourists traveling the Maine highways? That hardly seems fair.

The tourists come to our little community to enjoy what we have to offer in summer recreation, peace and tranquility and all of a sudden the gas price goes up. That does seem unfair, but what's even more unfair is that us locals have to pay the increase too and we all ready live here.

Maybe what we need is some kind of identification system like color-coded stickers. The local residents could have a blue sticker in their window indicating that they live here and therefore get the lowest price at the local gas stations.

The summer people would have a red sticker, which would be an indication that they are here most of the summer and should pay a slightly higher price than the blue stickers, but still not top dollar.

Tourists that are visiting for a week or so could have a yellow sticker costing them a few more pennies than the blue or red stickers but less than no sticker at all. Vehicles with no stickers are tourists just passing through town to get to somewhere else and they would pay the highest premium. After all, they don't plan to stick around and spend their tourist dollars in the local community so they would have to spend some of it to fuel their cars to get where ever it is that they do plan to spend their tourist dollars.

Then there are the people who now live "away", but grew up here and return to visit the old folks at home or attend a class reunion. A green sticker would allow them a small discount at the gas pumps because they have roots in the area.

And for the people who have family that moved here from some place else, but they themselves have no local heritage, they would be entitled to an orange sticker. Their gas expense would fall between the yellow sticker and the green sticker.

This sticker system could even be used on other things that seem to suffer summer tourist inflation. Lobsters for example; why should people who used to have a picture of this ugly crustacean on their license plate have to pay flatlander prices for them? That just isn't right.

The summer people certainly shouldn't have to absorb the bulk of the increase either. Most of these people own property here and pay taxes; they should be rewarded for that. Red sticker reductions would show these folks that even though they are from out-of-state, we appreciate their annual pilgrimage to our little corner of the world. They should not be confused with tourists.

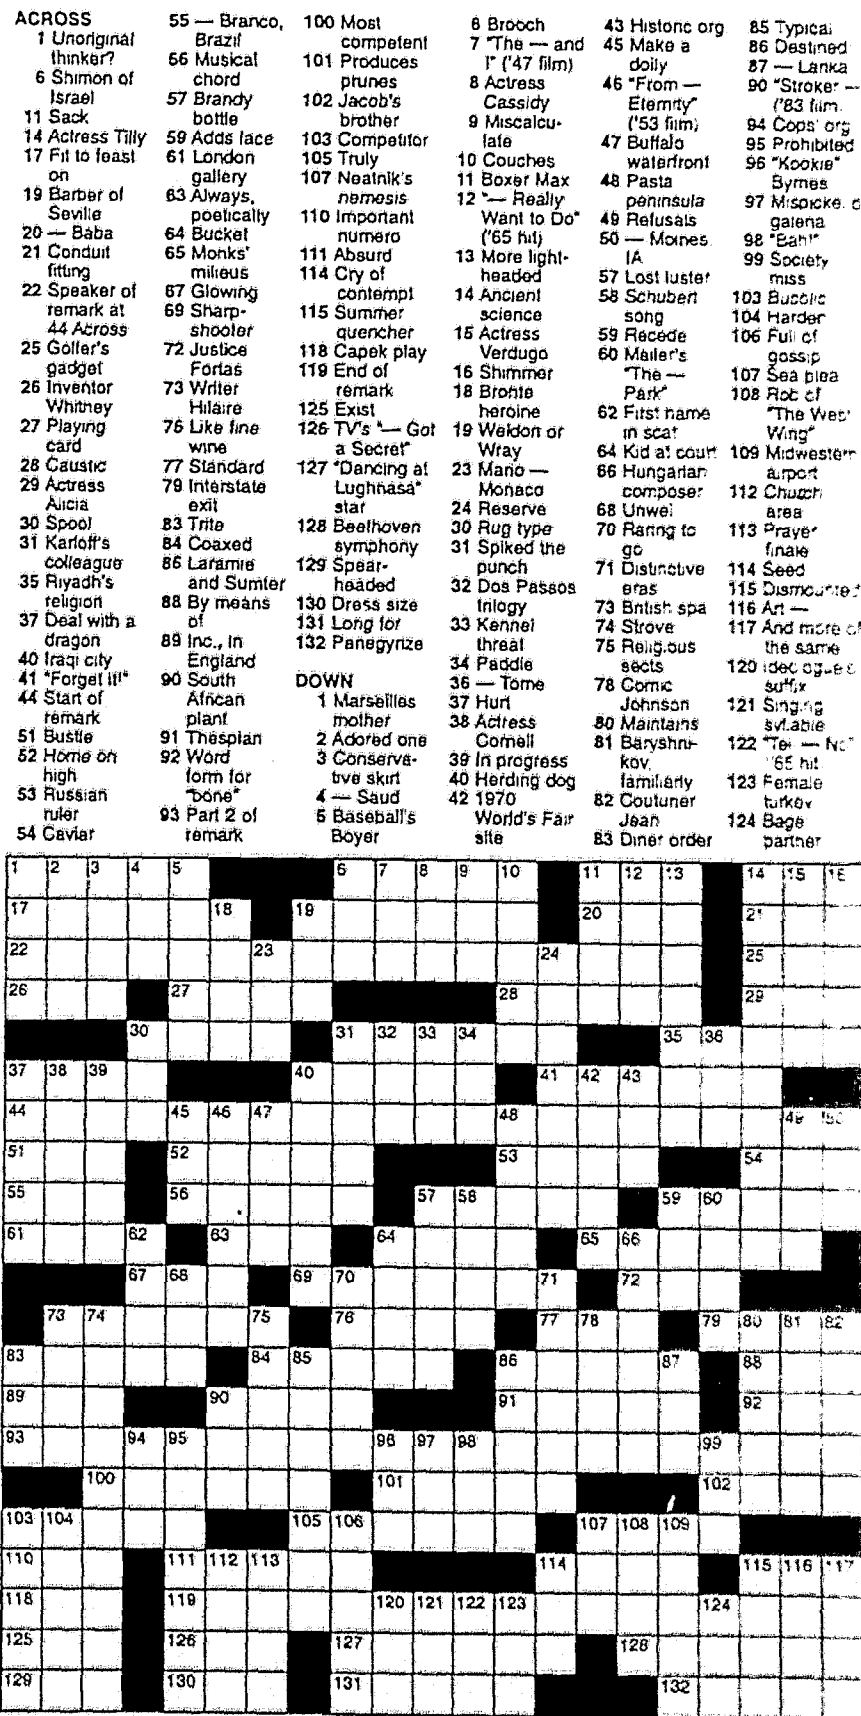

The tourists come here fully expecting to spend money. Especially for lobster, that's partly why they come here in the first place. I don't think they would feel discriminated against if they knew blue stickers awarded privileges that they are not entitled to.

If I went to Hawaii to vacation I would certainly expect to pay top dollar for fish and poi and whatever else; I would in fact, be a tourist—that's right—when Mainers go to other states they become the tourists. But when I'm here in Maine, I don't think I should have to get a loan to eat corn-on-the-cob and lobster.

Some other blue sticker discounts could be at summer recreational facilities, ice cream cones, boat rentals and novelty tee shirts. I don't think we should have to pay very high prices to park our cars when we go to outdoor concerts or fairs. I definitely resent having to pay a whopping price for a hamburger at a roadside stand.

The way I see it as the gas stations and the lobster pounds up their prices I can think how unfair it is, but there is little I can do about it. I wish I could just pull up to the gas pumps and point to my car and say "hey, sticker this!"

TELSTAR'S DAY
Events marking the 40th anniversary of the first transatlantic transmission of a television signal took place last Thursday in Andover. The Telstar satellite station in Andover sent the first television broadcast July 11, 1962, to a receiving station in France. Last week's observance featured a three-way telecast among the former satellite station sites in Andover, France and England. Plaques were also dedicated at the sites. In Andover, exhibits were displayed at the Town Hall and Historical Society. Dave Belanger of Andover, who worked as a technician at the original satellite station, is shown here with an actual Telstar satellite that was never launched. It was on loan from Bell Labs, which developed the satellite system. About 120 people attended the Andover observance.

Officer Peter Barlow. It was reported that two proposed projects would require DEP approval. The board tabled until another meeting a discussion about changes to the Site Plan Review Ordinance. The board will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, Aug. 7, at 6:30 p.m. at the Hanover Town Office to explain to citizens about the Shoreland Zone maps for the town of Hanover. The maps have been approved by the DEP and will be presented to the voters at the next Town Meeting planned for September. The next Planning Board meeting will be Aug. 7 at 7 p.m.

The next Hanover Selectors' meeting will be at the Town Office at 5 p.m. on July 18.

Lorraine Gallant has been hospitalized in Rumford because of injuries.

Two accidents occurred on Route 2 within one-quarter mile of each other on Wednesday. In the first one, an automobile left the road and traveled through the trees until it struck a large pine tree and burst into flames. The car was demolished and the driver was taken away by ambulance to be treated for his injuries. The fire was extinguished by the Rumford Fire Department who also assisted in treating the driver, as did several local volunteers. The second accident involved a deer and a motor vehicle. The deer was killed despite the driver's attempts to avoid the collision.

On Friday, the Source to the Sea Canoe Trek landed in Hanover at the Mahosuc Land Trust's Moran's Landing at Bear River Rips. There they enjoyed a lunch and celebrated the new launch site. Following the lunch, the group continued on to the Fish and Wildlife Boat Ramp in Hanover where they took out of the water for a day. On Saturday, Wooden Boat Day, they departed at the Hanover ramp and continued on toward Rumford. Dan Schwind from Brunswick has been staying with Bob Brown at Plumbago Mountain Farm at Howard Pond.

Sunday River Valley

by Rocky Graham
This has been a very busy week. I saw few friends but saw many people. I even met one man who knew a cousin of mine. When I saw where he was from, I said I had a cousin there. He said, is her name Charlotte? I said yes and he said he'd told his wife that I looked like Charlotte's sister, except that I had dark hair. Imagine that.

This Saturday is Mollycoddett Day. I managed to finagle the day off so I'm psyched — hope the weather is not too wet or too hot. I hope everyone from around here can enjoy the day.

Saw Julie this morning and she said she's seen a bear in the neighborhood. Sounds like a little one. Between that, the moose and the turkeys, we have a little wildlife farm right here in the valley. I'll be looking for the bear on my walks.

Teaching summer school English this summer has been an exercise in babysitting. It seems odd to speak of babysitting when one is working with 15- and 16-year-old students, but that is how it is. The boys compete to see who can be the most annoying and not get thrown out of class. There is only one girl in the class.

It is highly likely that even those who pass this class will experience the same difficulties next year. It is not clear at what age it dawns on students that high school is an opportunity to learn and it is free of charge. Never again in their lives will they get so much for so little money. Yet money is not important to them. They would rather play and socialize than anything. So be it. Eventually the chickens will come home to roost. I will probably not witness the transformation. That is okay, as I will have done what I can on their road to being real adult people instead of floundering as children.

Responsibility is also something that appears foreign to these students. Responsibility and honesty are anathema to this generation, or so it would seem. It is easier to blame someone, anyone else, than to take responsibility for work not done correctly or in a timely manner or even not done at all.

All that is not as bad, to me, as the outright lying. When someone looks you in the eye and lies and you know they are and they know they are ... And it is not just about something that might get them in trouble, it is just lying for lying's sake. Everyone tells white lies to smooth things over or stay out of trouble. I'm talking about looking one in the eye and lying. Sometimes one of them will even make up stories. Go figure.

Before I go, I must say that the garden is doing well. It was all weeded last week and I even watered it the other night. I'm eating lettuce, chard, spinach and a few radishes. The corn is growing well and might even be ripe by Labor Day or before. Seriously, I'm hoping for corn this summer. It's been too long.

Got to visit with Abby last night at the farm. The Sunday River Road is not too conducive to driving, but we braved it and headed up. I think the car will survive. Seriously, though, I hope someone is getting that road repaired. The pavement is still all torn up near Barbara York and Alan Fleet's houses. At least it may slow some of the yahoos down. Maybe that is even the point.

That is all for this week. Come and join me for Mollycoddett Day on the 20th. Stay cool and enjoy all the beautiful flowers in the fields.

The East Bethel Church will have two services this summer. The first service is on July 28 at 2 p.m. and the second service will be Aug. 25 at 2 p.m., with Ben Conant doing both services.

Heather Zimmerman is working in Wellesley, Mass., this summer with Don and Ruth Feeney's grandchildren. She has gone to Alaska with them and their parents as a nanny.

Elsie Grant of Laurel, Md., visited Nina Mollicone on July 10. On July 11, Nina and Elsie visited with Alice Grant in Cape Elizabeth.

Dale and Nancy Kimball, Roger and Louise Twitchell and Ruth Bethel attended the Bethel Senior Citizens Club meeting at the Jackson-Silver Post in Greenwood on July 10.

Dale and Nancy Kimball, Paul and Charlotte Kimball and their daughter, Velora Tuominen, and Andre and Flossie Bernier and their son, Jerry, visited Larry and Geneva Pelletier in Manchester, N.H. They attended a baby shower for Larry and Geneva's daughter, Heidi.

Barbara Honkala and her friend, Charlotte from Anchorage, Alaska, toured for 10 days in Nova Scotia recently. They had a lovely trip and saw a lot of the province.

Karlene and Ras Bachelder, with their daughter-in-law, Christine, and son, Brett, went to visit Karlene's mother, Julia Goodwin, at the Sunset Home in Waterville the day before the 4th. There they met with other members of the family, Heidi and husband, Arlan Littlefield, Wilma and Hilma, Julie and her two daughters, Natalie and Alexis. They had a great time and took Julia to lunch. I did not go with them this time and wondered if anyone missed me. Well, two-year-old Natalie did. She said, "Where is Gil?" I love you Natalie; see you soon I hope.

A few weeks ago, my car got jammed against an "obstacle" in the yard, and my two good friends, Owen and Bill W. came to the rescue. Thank you very much friends. I sure appreciate all you do for me at different times.

You may or may not realize that I attempt to always be grammatically correct in my writings except, of course, when I choose to murder English for "effect." A couple weeks ago, I mentioned my "great-nephew" Josh Aylward. A few days ago, a friend asked me about the usage of "great-" vs. "grand-nephew." He indicated that he looked it up and determined that I would have been more grammatically correct to have used the "grand" term when talking about my brother's grandson. This prompted me to look up those terms in my "Webster's New 20th Century Dictionary, Unabridged, Second Edition-Deluxe Color." According to this source, both terms (grand-nephew and great-nephew) mean exactly the same thing, so I was only wrong when I thought I was wrong.

You remember how hot it was a couple weeks ago? I don't believe my house has been that hot since I moved in 13 years ago. How hot was it, you ask? It was so hot that a citronella candle in one of those metal buckets on my front deck melted in the afternoon sun. Now, that's hot.

Lately, I've been helping Brother Rupert doing the haying at the farm and my own field. Of course, I don't have any critters to feed the hay to, but I wanted to exercise my baler, just to keep it in good working condition for when I really need it. Anyway, in using our modern '30s and '50s era equipment, we were finished in just a few days. I happened to mention to a friend, an "old timer," about how quickly we got the haying done. He told me, "In the old days we used to be haying on the 'meddas' with the old black horse way into September, and even October. Why, sometimes it got so cold haying that when it'd rain after we got the hay raked into windrows, it'd freeze 'em solid overnight. Next day, we'd hitch the horse to one end of the frozen windrows and twitch 'em back to the barn."

As has been the case for the past few years, many of the Maine Civil Air Patrol cadets will be spending much of the next two weeks at the Bog Brook training area for their annual "encampment." There, they will be doing leadership training and a host of other outdoor activities and training exercises. One of the planned events will be for many of them to be marching in Bethel's Mollycckett Day parade in their summer blue uniforms. I hope lots of folks will observe and show their appreciation to these "gung-ho" 13- to 18-year olds.

Andover

by
Joan Stinson Carney

The 40th anniversary of the first satellite communication from Andover to England and France went wonderfully well, thanks to the very hard work of David Belanger who engineered Andover's part in the event. The weather cooperated, the lunch was delicious, and the stone marker with its Margaret Chase Smith rosebush is a very nice addition to the Town Common. I want to thank Deborah and Harold Nelson of Newport for donating the rosebush; it was very thoughtful of them.

Olde Home Days are just a couple of weeks away, and I have plenty of news about that. The Andover Public Library will be holding a book sale from 1 to 4:30 p.m. downstairs in the library. All the books you can fit into a plastic bag for a $1.

The Photo Contest will be held downstairs at the Town Hall this year. Photos will be categorized into three subjects: Group 1: Portrait, Animal and Landscapes. Groups 2 and 3 are then separated into age brackets, not subject matter: 1) 17 years and older, color prints; 2) 11 years to 16, color prints; 3) 10 years and younger, color prints; 4) black and white prints, all ages in one collective group. All photos must be submitted to the Andover Town Hall no later than July 31. This will be strictly enforced, no exceptions. Dates and times to submit photos are: Saturday, July 27, between 1 and 4 p.m.; Monday, July 28, between 5 and 8 p.m.; Wednesday, July 31, between 4 and 8 p.m. Rules for entry: each photo must have name, address, and age if under 17 printed on the back of the photo. No photos will be accepted with a name on the photo side. Only three photos in any subject matter per person. No professionals, please. If you have already won a first-prize ribbon with a photo, please don't submit it again. Framed or matted photos do not enhance the judging, but do complement the exhibit.

The Town Office will be closed on Tuesday, July 23. Recently, the Telstar Class of 1982 held their 20th reunion. The "Upton Women" attending were Michelle Goodrum Lutz, Linda Blais Coulombe and Norma Aron Palmer. They had a grand time recalling old times and comparing pictures of their children.

The Fifth Annual Birch Point Tea Party, hosted by Grandma Barbara Stratton, was held on July 9. Granddaughters Kristen, Christine, and Carrie Stratton and their cousins, Hannah and Abigail Rogers assisted in the preparations. Guests attending were Sue Nelson, Evelyn Kenney, Ginny Williamson, Mary Hood, Joan Miller and Ellie LeComte. All the ladies wore hats, (some were really bad). Sue Nelson wore a wide-brimmed picture hat and topped off the spiffy outfit with bright yellow gloves (Christian Dior — eat your heart out).

The Ladies Aid held a work night on Tuesday. The tedious job of sorting yard sale goods occupied them for most of the evening. There were lots of fine donations of bric-a-brac, clothing, appliances and other things in the goods for sale. The Bake Sale is always a success. This event will take place July 27 from 9 a.m. till 3 p.m.

Lionel Roy has given up on his wonderful garden. After many plantings of cabbage and other "veggies," he has recognized defeat. Some creature slips into the garden and devours every plant right down to the ground. He thinks it's a woodchuck. I say it's Bambi or Peter Rabbit that are the thieving beasts.

Happy Anniversary to Dick and Sue Angevine on their 41st year of wedded bliss.

The annual Androscoggin Trek to the Sea was held last week with three Upton kayakers entering. Joan and Dave Miller and Sue Nelson paddled down through Shelburne and Gilead. The scenery and weather received rave notices from the group.

There is brand new house on Mill Road. Jessica and Caitlyn Casey's playhouse arrived on Sunday. The School. One is a beautiful rendition of the Covered Bridge — I've already won that one, I wish. The other is a special scene of Roxbury Pond. David will also have a booth on the common, so go have a look and think about just how close Christmas is getting.

Amy Byne, daughter of Marsha Burns of East Andover, is back from a year teaching English in a bilingual school in Columbia. She plans to relax for the rest of the summer with her mother and stepfather, Carl. Job well done Amy.

Loena Simmons spent the weekend visiting with former resident Gloria Miller at Gloria's home in Parsonsfield.

Barbara Reed Flaherty, a former resident of Andover for many years, passed away in Salt Lake City, Utah, on July 2. Cards of condolence can be sent to her brother, Douglas Reed, 27 Play Drive, Enfield, CT 06082.

Guests of the Swains recently were Peg Fraser Webber, her two daughters, two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren from Littleton, Colo. They came to Bethel to visit relatives and then to East Andover where Mrs. Webber lived with her Aunt Lucie and Uncle Robert Swain. She graduated from Andover High in 1933. Her mother died in 1918 when her brother, Alan, was born. Her father was Millard Fraser, who also lived at the Swains.

Robert J. Swain II flew into East Andover from Lexington, Ky., for several days over the 4th. His wife and daughter came later. They all stayed at the Swain cottage at Roxbury Pond. His brother, Rodney, and his son, Gregory, spent one night visiting. Another brother, Ross, and his wife, joined the group. Twenty-four relatives and friends were at the Swain Cottage on the 4th. Joining the Swains were the Stiles family and friends from Dummer, N.H. Dwight Stiles was unable to attend due to illness. This gathering at Roxbury Pond is an annual affair.

Birthdays for the following week include: Minnie Akers, Rodney Walker and Sharon Hutchins on the 19th; Patricia Emery, Darlene Akers, Ashley Thibodeau and Arthur Hutchins on the 20th; Katie Swasey and Brianna Spaulding on the 21st; Samantha Cuff and Toby Mosher on the 23rd; Erika Davis on the 24th; and Eric Hutchins and Matthew Morin on the 25th. Anniversaries: Sandy and Randy Standeven on the 21st, Rick and Charlie Mills on the 23rd, Wally and Penny Smith on the 24th, Bob and Lida Iles and Robert and Violet Swain on the 25th.

The word for the week is "cinabar." Look it up. See 'ya.

From the

Telstar Alumni Association

The Telstar Alumni Association held its monthly meeting on Tuesday, July 9, at Sally Smith's home. This coming Saturday, July 20, is Mollycodd Day in Bethel. The alumni will have its information booth on the Bethel Common, as in years past, for all Telstar alumni to stop by and chat. Even those who attended but did not graduate are welcome to stop by. The Class of '72 (30 years) and the Class of '92 (10 years) have planned their reunions for that night.

The fifth annual Alumni Day will be held on Aug. 10 at Telstar Regional High School. The daytime event will take place from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will include a BBQ, business meeting and election of new officers.

The next alumni meeting will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 6, at Sally Smith's house to finalize plans for Alumni Day. Members are invited to attend.

From the

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

The summer meeting of the Oxford County League of Historical Societies will be held on Saturday, July 27, at 2 p.m. at McLaughlin Gardens in South Paris. Everyone is welcome and the program will feature a tour of this important community resource.

The 22nd annual Sudbury Canada Days, the Bethel Historical Society's summer heritage festival, will be held on Aug. 9, 10, and 11 at the Regional History Center on Broad Street. Details will be announced in next week's column.

Over a thousand members strong, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving, and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. For over thirty-five years, the society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. Since 1974, the society has operated from its Broad Street headquarters, the Dr. Moses Mason House, a period house museum and research library. In 1999, it opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. Through the years, the society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

Or take to the water with our "Canoeing Lake Umbagog for Families" which is offered on Monday, July 29 through Wednesday, July 31. Spend three days on Lake Umbagog learning to canoe, enjoying a swim, and watching the wildlife in this pristine National Wildlife Refuge.

A one-day course on the water, entitled "Family Canoeing: Androscoggin Adventure," is being offered on Monday, Aug. 4. Enjoy a day's paddle with your family on this scenic stretch of river. Starting in Shelburne, N. H., participants will paddle seven miles to Gilead. Along the way, wildlife and natural history will be discussed. Enjoying the outdoors together as a family is a great experience with lasting memories. The trip is open to AMC members and non-members alike.

The Appalachian Mountain Club is offering two hike and hut opportunities for families in July and August. Our "Curious Explorers at Lakes of the Clouds" workshop begins Wednesday, July 24 running through Thursday, July 25. Participants will hike down the Ammonoosuc Ravine Trail on the second day while learning about the ecology of the west side of Mount Washington.

Our "Curious Explorers at Zealand Falls" outdoor workshop is

Aug. 5 and 6. Young children and their parents will enjoy hiking 2.5 miles up to Zealand Falls Hut along abandoned rail beds and through white birch groves. Trail games along with way will challenge our senses as we check for signs of moose and check out beaver lodges. This outdoor skills program is open to everyone, AMC members and non-members alike.

TEST YOUR KNOWLEDGE OF HOME-OWNING TERMS

(NAPSI)-Taking the following quiz may help you decide if you are ready to become a homeowner. The quiz covers some basic terms used in the process of securing a home mortgage.

True or False?

1. The annual percentage rate (APR) is a rate that reflects the total cost of your mortgage loan.
2. Your credit history is the record of your open and fully repaid debts.
3. Your debt-to-income ratio is the relationship of what you owe each month on long-term debt divided by your gross monthly income, expressed as a percentage.
4. Discount points are the discounts given by certain mortgage lenders.
5. Equity is the part of your home that is owned by the bank.

Answers

1. True. The APR reflects factors such as the interest rate on your mortgage loan, the term of the loan and other applicable costs of financing such as points, fees and certain closing costs.

2. True. A credit history helps a lender determine whether a potential borrower has a history of repaying debts in a timely manner.

3. True. It is also called the bottom ratio or back-end ratio.

4. False. Discount points are charges levied by the mortgage lender and usually payable at closing. One point represents one percent of the face value of the mortgage loan.

5. False. Equity is a homeowner's financial interest in a property. Equity is the difference between the fair market value of the property and the amount owed on its mortgage.

The best time to learn about terms such as these is not at or after your closing, but before you shop for a home.

A new Web site makes it easier to understand the important terms and steps involved in securing a home mortgage.

Visitors to www.Century21Mortgage.com can use the site's online mortgage calculators to gain a better understanding of the economics of securing a home mortgage and reference the site's alphabetical list of relevant mortgage and real estate terms.

His Journey's Just Begun

By Ellen Brenneman

Don't think of him as gone away - his journey's just begun life holds so many facets this earth is only one.

Just think of him as resting from the sorrows and the tears in a place of warmth and comfort where there are no days and years.

Think how he must be wishing that we could know today
how nothing but our sadness can really pass away.

And think of him as living in the hearts of those he touched... for nothing loved is ever lost - and he was loved so much.

We love and miss you Matt.
Your footprints will remain on our hearts forever.

Love,
Matt & Carrie
